Impact OF GENDER Equality ON

National Progress

Introduction :-

In daily life, society faces many challenges and same is the case of our society. Gender Inequality is a major social evil in our society. Male and female are not given the same esteem. Males are considered prior than female. They have jobs, well education, financial freedom, freedom of expression and female are the one who are deprived of these necessities. This inequality of gender is a major cause of the national backwardness.

Causes of Gender Inequality *

The main reason of the gender inequality in our society is the mindset of our people and our culture. Females are deprived of their share in education because people think that it is unnecessary for them they are the care taker of the house. In our society, females are not allowed to work or to get jobs. Majority females have done their primary education and haven't get higher education. Marriage is another hinderance in the gender equality. Females are not allowed to persue their study or job after marriage. The False believes developed in our society make females suffer. Such as "Marrying with Quran" and giving daughter to eradicate hatred between families or as an agreement. Females had been suffering for even medical treatment. Some families do not feel good for female to visit hospitals. The rate of maternal mortality is high in Pakistan, female lose their lives or their infants during birth. This must be taken into the account.

Impacts of Gender Equality on National progress

Gender Inequality must be uprooted from every society in the world.

Gender Inequality is the major cause of backwardness of our country. Gender Equality can lead to national progress. If males and females are treated equally our country will prosper. Many talented female students fall victim to social beliefs and their talent goes in vein. If both are treated equality many skillful women will appear at higher seats in the field of engineering, medical, industrial etc. By providing heed to that talent and skills would take over our country and we will progress. Female can play a vital role in the field of medical to reduce maternal mortality rate. If they are provided with jobs they will become independent and economically stable. Educated mother will lead to educated society. Thus gender equality is essential for national progress. According to Hazrat Muhammad (S.A.W) &

"Male and female have equal rights. They must be given the share of what they earn and husbands have rights on wives and vice versa".

Steps to uproot Gender Inequality

Our government must take step to eradicate gender inequality. Women must be given reserved seats in civil services. Social awareness sessions should be arranged to change the wrong mindset of people. They should be given equal facilities especially the medical or health facilities. New schemes or plans should be launched for the betterment of women. Communities shall be formed to provide justice and their due rights to them.

Conclusion :-

Gender equality is the only way towards national progress. By giving the due rights and equal share we can progress nationally and overcome the hurdles that come to our country and emerge as a strong nation.
