Jinnah's Views :

Jinnah's Views about the partition of India were that this incident was unavoidable and this incident had to happen at any cost. In his earlier political life, he also believed in Hindu Muslim Unity but several events made it clear to him that Hindu-Muslim Unity was not possible at any cost. Therefore, he also said that there will be many who are unhappy with this decision but the history will be evidence that this decision was wholly and solely right. He also emphasized that now these people should start working for the welfare of the country.

QUESTION : 03

Part : c

We live in modern age. Earth has hauled around 8 billion people in its lands which consist of 52.1% of male gender while 47.9% are women. People are living in different regions and every region has some specific needs for progress, development and living.

- * No country can progress without both the genders playing their equivalent respective role. When both the genders equivalently work together country observes development to immaculate extent. Unfortunately, we are such a nation where male is dominated over women in every point of view. Simply, we are living in a male dominated society when man is considered as a bread winner while women are compelled to stay in their respective homes. It has been given by World Bank that only 5.1% of senior positions are held by women. In Pakistan half population comprises of men while other half are women.

★ As a result only half population of Pakistan is contributing towards the national progress. If women are allowed to attain education and participate in the different jobs. Our country progress can be increased because that other half will also contribute in the progress of country.

★ There are many people who are literate enough to send their women to gain education. This education not only let them participate equivalently in jobs along with men but it makes them competent enough to raise their children even much better, who are future of this country. An educated mother is always better than that of an uneducated mother. Because she has greater exposure and knowledge to provide better environment to their children.

* People need to realize this that women are supposed to be given equal rights. Islam has also emphasized on giving equal rights to women. In The Holy Quran Allah Almighty says:

"For women there is what they earned and for men there is what they earned."

Prophet (PBUH) also emphasized on giving rights to women. In his last address to Muslims, he said :

"You have equal rights on your wives and yours wives have equal right on you."

★ If Our people give proper rights and respect to their women then educated them, no doubt that Pakistan will see more Maryam Mukhtar, Nigar Johar and Malala Yousafzai. At the end, we need to trust our women and give them chance to stand with us equally as they did at the time of Independance of Pakistan.
